E jessica@jeharnum.com

I live in St. John's, Newfoundland, where I am constantly studying new & innovative ways to implement a variety of web programming languages. I have always had an interest in art and technology and the convergence of these two interests have developed into a strong passion for web based design and programming. I like to work with reusable frameworks, scripts, & plugins to create dynamic web spaces that are big on impact & interactive features. I also bring a sharp eye and attention to detail to the front end development of my design work.

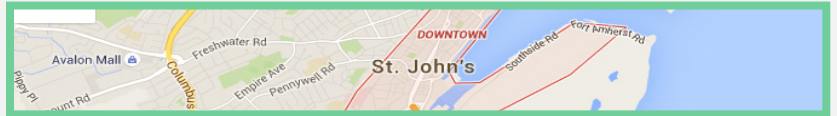

Not limited to web, my graphic design abilities include image restoration and illustration. I work mainly on web-based images however I do enjoy taking on design projects in layout based design and other brand
